External sources support real-world comparison, cost-of-forgetting examples, market figures, key-person-risk context, and buyer-economics context; they are not primary sources for ARC SE internal claims. Claim Trace

Memo claim	Internal source basis	Boundary
Current direct value answer is $2.5M-$5M.	Current Value Report pages 11-12; combined comparison report page 18.	Current strategic asset value, not audited enterprise valuation.
Conservative $1M-$2.5M; aggressive $5M-$10M.	Current Value Report page 11; combined comparison report page 18.	Assumption-based ranges; not guarantees.
$10M-$25M is selective strategic-buyer option only.	Combined comparison report page 18; Valuation Thesis pages 93-121.	Not the base current answer.
Investor buys truth/evidence/replay/parity/Watcher/Coordinator/organisms/archives.	Combined comparison report pages 22-24; Ecosystem Dossier pages 1-17.	Assets need transferability and validation.
ARC SE is difficult to recreate.	Founder Story; Evolution Documentary; May15 Resurrection; Strategic Acquisition Thesis pages 1-26; Valuation Thesis pages 74-87.	Recreation difficulty does not remove risk or prove returns.
ARC SE solves preservation and transfer of operational intelligence.	Founder Story; Evolution Documentary; May15 Resurrection; Ecosystem Dossier; Master Book Final.	This is the controlling thesis of the memo, not a claim of institutional maturity.
Adjacent software categories solve fragments but not the full preservation-transfer problem.	External company sources for Palantir, Datadog, Splunk, Bloomberg, Scale AI plus canonical comparison report.	The memo does not claim ARC SE competes directly with or equals those companies.
Investors already paid billions for adjacent problem categories.	External company sources for Palantir, Datadog, Splunk, Bloomberg, Celonis, and Scale AI.	Used as category evidence only; no peer valuation is copied into ARC SE.
Transferable operational intelligence is the distinct category argument.	Founder Story; Evolution Documentary; May15 Resurrection; Ecosystem Dossier; Master Book Final.	ARC SE must still prove transferability, validation, and commercial adoption.
Real-world companies prove paid adjacent needs.	External sources plus canonical comparison report pages 4-11.	No peer valuation is copied into ARC SE.
Capital should fund transferability and validation.	Combined comparison report pages 19-24; Valuation Thesis pages 102-118.	Budgets are planning assumptions, not financial advice.

Source-map boundary

The memorandum treats the ten named ARC SE PDFs as the canonical investor package. It does not use older duplicate versions when a newer canonical version is listed. External research is limited to company comparison evidence and does not create ARC SE valuation by analogy.
